151st Batallion

The local platoon of the 151st is filling up rapidly. The extraordinary cold weather of the month has retarded recruiting to a great extent, as it has been impossible to do any work in outside points in the district. If the weather moderates in the near future an active campaign will be commenced in the country districts. There are in the Wetaskiwin district hundreds of men who should be in the ranks of the empire's army, and the formation of a platoon of the 151st here gives them a splendid opportunity. Recruits will be trained in Wetaskiwin and the boys can live at home, or close to their homes for several months. The training given is just what our young men need; it will give them a different view of life and put them in a position to face the world with more courage when the war is over—it will make real men of them.

The parents of eligible young men should see that their boys join the colors. The quickest way to end the war is to show the enemy that Great Britain has unlimited reserves, of men, and whether they get to the firing line or not they are doing their "bit" for defence of their homes and in after years this knowledge will be very pleasing to them.

See Lieut. Peterkin in command of the local platoon, who will be pleased to give intending recruits all information.

Haunted By Horror

Preston Smith, tenor with the Royal Welsh Quartette, is haunted by the horror of the scenes which he spent in the water at the sinking of the steamer Lusitania last May.

He has remained on the platform but once to hear Mr. William's talk and that time he went back to his room completely unnerved and cried like a child. Smith also said: "You may know that their was some feeling and emotion when we Welsh choir boys hugged and kissed each other when we met in Queenstown on the morning following our thrilling rescue."

The Royal Welsh Male Quarteete, all survivors of this terrible disaster, will appear at Angus Theatre on Wednesday evening, February 23. In addition, Risca Williams, baritone soloist, will give his vivid description of this historical event in the war of the nations.

Communication

To the Editor of The Times: ...

Dear Sir.—What is the matter with our council that it does not have the sidewalks cleared of the large banks of snow, forcing people, especially children, to walk in the middle of the streets, endangering their lives in case of run-a-ways, etc.

It was noticed last summer that after every little rain, the council was very prompt to hustle out men and teams at the town's expense, to clean off the roads for a few of the auto drivers, but when it comes to serving the public in general by keeping the sidewalks clean, our noble council does not appear to be on the job.

Citizen.

To the editor of The Times:

Sir:—Just a line to bring to your notice a curious breach of military etiquette.

An officer is seen passing down the street, and a member of the R.N.W.M.P. refuses to come to the salute. Now, sir, this is due to one of three things, it is either ignorance, direct insult, or blindness.

If due to ignorance, this man should be put back into the awkward squad until he knows what every recruit is supposed to know.

If an insult, it should be brought to the notice of headquarters, who will not stand for that for one moment.

If blindness, he is evidently unfit to be an active member of the force. Any man who wears the King's uniform is to be saluted and treated with respect. It is due to the uniform even in the case where one has no particular respect for the man who wears it, and it matters not what regiment or what arm of the service.

A word to the wise is sufficient.

A large number of friends, including all the students of the high school, were at the depot to bid her farewell.

An interesting meeting was held in the Presbyterian church on Wednesday evening on behalf of the Red Cross Society, when Pte. Wells sang several solos, and Pte. H. R. Mr. Peat gave a very vivid description of the war, and of the excellent work done by the Canadians. A number of interesting lantern slides from the front were also shown and briefly explained.

Our Ottawa Letter

Ottawa, Can. 27.—The clarion call for nation-wide prohibition and a period of three years thereafter does not seem to be meeting with the response from the Conservative side of the house which its trumpet tones might expect. The Conservative members are more interested in the shell contracts than in the efforts of the teetotallers.

A meeting of the legislative committee of the Dominion Alliance and the Ottawa Committee which had the matter in hand was held in the Railway Committee room of the house of commons one day last week The hope was, no doubt, that many government supporters would join in and lend the movement the encouragement of their presence. It was, alas, a vain hope. Government supporters at this stage of the game are carefully sidestepping all movements except those which look toward an extension of the life of parliament and the satisfactory financial consequences attendant thereon.

All of which leads up to the fact that in an assemblage of perhaps one hundred temperance reformers, members of parliament and senators, only one Conservative member put in an appearance and spoke.

For the last fortnight members of Parliament have been buttonholed so to speak by the federal prohibition movement. Secretary Seybold has written letters to each member asking where he stood and how he might be expected to vote. How to answer these letters—that was the question. How to answer them without turning the proposition down cold and let leave a ray of hope, silence would not do—this was a straight question and Secretary Seybold was entitled to at least an oblique guswer. The Conservative members, being in a more responsible position than their Liberal colleagues, naturally waited for a lead from one of their responsible statesmen. They got it from Sir George Foster, who is the original Foxy Grandpa when it comes to writing answers that commit nobody to anything.

Considering Sir George's life long career on the water wagon and also considering what the water wagon did for Sir George in the way of making him a cabinet minister in Sir John Macdonald's government, and shaping his subsequent success, Secretary Seybold naturally expected that Sir George might want to do something for the water wagon. So he wrote to Sir Geurbe pointing out what a vast saving could be effected if the people of Canada swore off drinking strong drinks and turned the money over to the Paeriotic Fund and the war debt.

Now Sir George may lack the enthusiasm of his youth for great moral causes, that is to say he may have come to the conclusion that it is hard to make the world good all of a sudden and by process of law—which is a conclusion mellow philosophers generally arrive at—but he is just as quick at the uptake as ever. He saw Mr. Seybold's point at once and gave him his answer. Not such an answer perhaps as he would have given say thirty years ago when he had just emerged from a college professorship and was a regular Woodrow Wilson for uplift, but such an answer as might be expected from a politician who has been thoroughly tanned by experience. It was a clever answer and covered the whole ground from Sir George's present point of view but there wasn't much comfort in it for Dominion-wide prohibition as outlined by Secretary Seybold.

To cut the story short Sir George Foster replied that the nation-wide prohibition was a consummation devoutly to be wished, a beautiful ideal—an ideal being something that is reached—and that no doubt the money wasted on drink would adequately support the Patriotic Fund and pay off the national debt "if it could be collected and devoted to these purposes." I do not quote Sir George's exact words but that was the hang of it. He left the impression, some way or other, that the Dominion treasury would be the last place the boose money would think of using as a bank. This was the cue Sir George's humble and inferior associates on the back benches were looking for and since that time Secretary Seybold's morning mail has been as leaves in Vallumbrosa. Every government supporter has seized the opportunity to put himself on record as a prohibitionist of the Sir George Foster variety. They cannot copy a better man. The answer Secretary Seybold is receiving are marvels of equivocation. There is about as much hope for prohibition in them as there is for blood in a turnip.

Meanwhile a resolution has been drafted looking to "the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor during the war and the constructive period of three years thereafter." This resolution will be introduced into the house by two members of parliament, preferably one Conservative and one Liberal member, although doubt is expressed whether a Conservative member can be found who will act as the goat.

On the fate of this resolution opinion is about evenly divided. Will it gradually drift into the boneyard of adjourned debates? Or will it be voted on and passed? The movement for prohibition will probably be as near becoming a law of the land one way or another.—H.P.G.

AGRICULTURAL CREDITS

One of the biggest questions before the public in Western Canada is that of better banking accommodation for the farmers. It is not only a big question, meaning much to the country, but it is one which presents many serious difficulties.

Whatever may be said in favor of our banking system, and it has some undeniable virtues, it is not adapted to give satisfactory assistance to farmers during the developing period of the country. The high rate of interest, the limited loans, and most of all the short term of loaning, all handicap the bank, however disposed it might be to furnish credit to the farmer.

On the other hand the private loaning companies do not provide what the farmer wants. Their rates are much higher than the banks, and their methods are not always as careful as the banks.

It is of great importance to the country in general, particularly at this time, that the farmer should have plenty of capital to develop the land. At the conclusion of the war all countries will be face to face with difficulties. That country which produces most will most quickly right itself and start out in the road of progress. The country should be developed in the most vigorous and most complete capacity. It cannot be done without ample capital carrying a moderate rate of interest.

In addition to that, the terms of payment should be adapted to the needs of the farmers.

A bank loans money to a farmer and then starts in on him to reduce the loan before he has been able to get in any revenue at all.

A Kansas City banker just last week, placed a scheme before the state of Kansas for a banking organization which would be of value to the farmers of that country.

In part his scheme is to furnish 15 year loans at reasonable interest, without renewal commissions or added items.

It seems to me that the best solution to the problem is the organization of a land credit bank. The state should control the operations of the bank. I think capital of one million dollars, held by state banks, and investment companies would be the proper amount. The bank should confine its loans to farmers who are actually cultivating the lands they own, and should be either upon the straight payment or amortization plan. The straight loans should be made for not less than five or longer than fifteen years, and give the farmer the privilege of making payments after three years. Amortization loans could be extended for 35 years and the payments arranged so that the loan and interest would be entirely absorbed by the monthly payments.

The loans should not exceed 50 per cent of the value of the land for straight loans, and 65 per cent for amortization loans. I would limit the number of acres on which any one person could obtain loans to 200 acres in Eastern Kansas, and not to exceed 640 acres in the western part of the state. Then the bank would be strictly a home owners' institution.

There may be considerable difficulty in adapting a financial organization of that kind to our system. However, we are beginning to know what we want, and with that, we should have no serious difficulty in getting a solution.

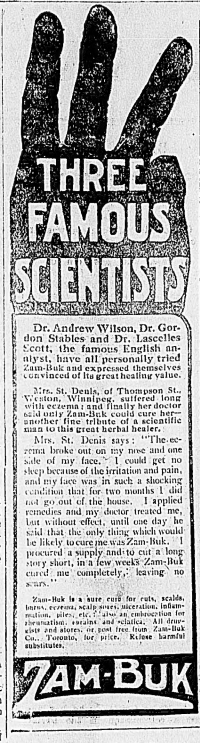
Was Not Much of a Believer in Patent Medicines

But Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills Are All Right.

Mrs. Wm. McElwain, Temperance Vale, N.B., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I must say Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are all right. Some years ago I was troubled with smothering spells. In the night I would waken up with my breath all gone and think I never would get it back. I was telling a friend of my trouble, and he advised me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. He gave me a box, and I had only taken a few of them when I could sleep all night without any trouble. I did not finish the box until some years after when I felt my trouble coming back, so I took the rest of them and they cured me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have been on the market for the past twenty-five years. The testimony of the users should be enough to convince you that what we claim for them is true. H. and N. Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; at all druggists or dealers, mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.



Dr. Andrew Wilson, Dr. Gordon Stables and Dr. Lascelles Scott, the famous English analyst, have all personally tried Zam-Buk and expressed themselves convinced of its great healing value.

Mrs. St. Denis, of Thompson St., Weston, Winnipeg, suffered long with eczema; and finally her doctor said only Zam-Buk could cure her—another fine tribute of a scientific man to this great herbal healer.

Mrs. St. Denis says: "The eczema broke out on my nose and one side of my face. I could get no sleep because of the irritation and pain, and my face was in such a shocking condition that for two months I did not go out of the house. I applied remedies and my doctor treated me, but without effect, until one day he said that the only thing which would be likely to cure me was Zam-Buk. I procured a supply and to cut a long story short, in a few weeks Zam-Buk cured me completely, leaving no scars."

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for cuts, scalds, burns, eczema, scalp sores, ulceration, inflammation, piles, etc. It also an embrocation for rheumatism, sciatica and sciatica. All druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

BORDEN PROMISES THAT OPPORTUNITY BE GIVEN TO TALK PROHIBITION

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—Replying to the delegation which waited on the Premier this morning asking for Dominion wide prohibition during the war, Sir Robert Borden asked if a statement could be prepared to show the extent to which provincial legislation was being enforced and also what would be the effect of further provincial enforcements.

Sir Robert Borden declared that since 1884, when a resolution of this kind had been passed that advances had turned their attention towards provincial measures. A very great advance had been made in provincial legislation. The enactment of a law is one thing, and the enforcement of it quite another. There was no worse possible example to the people or no more evil lesson than an enforced law. If in Quenec the people had not been able to induce the legislature to enforce provincial powers to their limits it was obvious that there must be some good reason, and the federal authorities, who were now asked to go even further, must take account of it. He assured the deputation that full opportunity would be given to discuss the matter in parliament. He added that if prohibition was a good law in time of war, it would be equally as good in time of peace.

FIFTEEN MONTHS FOR SOCIALIST WHO UTTERED SEDITIOUS LANGUAGE

Red Deer, Jan. 28.—The entire session of the supreme court here today was occupied by the case of John Reid, who is charged by the crown with sedition. He was sentenced to fifteen months in Lethbridge jail.

Reid is the Socialist candidate in Red Deer riding, and though a British subject of Scottish birth, he is charged with having used the following seditious words at a public meeting held at Byarth on March 16 1915, Rocky Mountain House on June 11, 1915, and Evarts on June 22.

"That German atrocities in this war are no worse than the atrocities of the British, that though he had served his king and country faithfully during the Boer war, at the end of which he had returned to find he had no country and that his King did not want him.

"That British territory the world over had been stolen through the force of arms. The patriotic fund will find its way into the pockets of British members of the cabinet and parliament. That ritish soldiers are cutting off the fingers of German prisoners and selling them as souvenirs in Scotland and France. He was born British but was not proud of it, and we have no King's a ns country.

"German soldiers were forced to serve by statute, but British men were forced to serve in the army by their stomach for a meal ticket."

Children Like It

"You know it is not an easy matter to get children to take medicine, and forcing it on them does no good. Most mothers know that a cough medicine, while palatable, should contain no drug injurious to the child.

The great popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is explained by the fact that it contains no opium or narcotic of any kind, and at the same time is so pleasant and agreeable to the taste that children like

AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION

This article will have failed in its purpose if it has not brought out the idea that true agricultural education will ensure the application of science to farming, and that true agricultural education must begin with the child and proceed in a logical order. At the outset it was stated perhaps rather bluntly, that most adults are not susceptible to change. A few of us may have been fortunate in being able to maintain some ideals from boyhood days, when a moon shone on every telegraph pole, but for the most part we, who have topped the hill and are jogging down the sunset trail, have our habits of thought and action pretty well fixed. We enjoy farmers' institutes, short course schools demonstration trains, seed fairs and such, because they brighten us up a bit and give us something to talk about, but we would have to admit that the best service performed by these institutions is in the number of lads they interest and entice away in search of further agricultural instruction. Yes, it is hard to modify the practice of adults, but there is one way to reach many of them, and that is through their children. Many a farmer has gone against his own judgment to give a boy an opportunity to work out an idea perhaps learned at college. So after all, the hope of the country is in its children. Let us see that they get as much agricultural education as time and money will allow. When they are young, develop their interest in things agricultural, and as they grow older direct their attention to the many available sources of information, and when the boy thus trained grows to manhood he will not hang the agricultural bulletin or periodical beside the kitchen window to use for shaving paper on Sunday morning. Let us foster all things that tend to interest the boy in the profession of farming—interesting books, school gardens, private ownership of some good live stock that shall not be "Johnny's pig and Daddy's bacon," commonsense apportionment of his hours of labor and recreation—and we shall reduce materially the abnormal exodus from country to city. We are due for a wonderful advance in this young country of ours, when the cruel wartide over, and we have time and inclination to devote ourselves to further advancement, if we seize it that we exercise our privilege of training our youth and see to it that we turn out earnest, practical men and woman not in spite of, but because of education in agricultural matters—education in applying science to farming."—Address by Dean Howes.

THE DAIRY AND COLD STORAGE

It is doubtful if any subject, excepting only the war itself, at this juncture in the world's history is commanding more attention than the products of the dairy, with which cold storage is intimately allied. Therefore, the report of the dairy and cold storage commissioner for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1915 recently issued, and which can be had upon application to the publications branch, department of agriculture, Ottawa, will doubtless be received with more than ordinary attention. The commissioner, Mr. J. A. Ruddick, briefly records his experience on a visit to Europe as a Canadian government delegate to a Sixth annual Dairy Congress held in June, 1914, at Berne, Switzerland. Returning via England, he found that Canadian cheese stood in the highest possible favor, commanding even a better price than that of New Zealand, where special and unremitting efforts are being made to capture the British trade in dairy products, and where the cheese factories have greatly increased in number. Canadian cheese, Mr. Ruddick, testifies, has become the standard for all importations. He paid a visit to the centres of the Cheddar cheese industry in Shropshire, Flintshire and Cheshire and was surprised at its extent. An interesting account is given in the report of the extension of marketing facilities and of the operations of the Finch and Brome dairy stations. Other matters dealt with are the dairy herd records, excess of water in butter, inspection of weighing butter and cheese, the activities of the precooling and experimental fruit storage warehouse at Grimsby, Ont., cold storage progress, publications and meetings. An exceptionally full appendix covering ninety-six pages and divided into twelve sections, deals historically with the twenty-five seasons work of the assistant dairy commissioner, Mr. J. C. Chagnon, with the work of the chief of the markets extension division, in connection with which a quantity of valuable information is furnished regarding the needs and methods of the British and French markets with tables of prices of every variety of farm and garden produce and sales at each month of the year; and with dairy herd records and tests in different provinces. Reports in full are also furnished as parts of the appendix of the cold storage inspector of the chief inspector of dairy products, of the fruit, cold storage and transportations investigation division, and of the inspector of weighing of butter and cheese, the whole concluding with statistics of the total Canadian exports and imports of butter and cheese for the last 35 years, for the last seven years of the Canadian exports of cheese, butter cream, condensed milk, casein, and fresh milk, and for the last eleven years of the total exports of cheese and butter by all countries.

THE COST OF PRODUCING MILK

The cost of producing milk obviously depends a great deal on the milking capacity of the cows used. Comparison between eight of the best and eight of the poorer cows in an Ontario dairy record centre shows that there was a difference in profit per cow of $24.56, the eight high yielding cows giving an average of $37.21 while the poorer cows returned a profit of only $12.65 per head. The milk in each case was valued at $1.15 per hundred pounds. The difference would no doubt have been very much reduced had the feeding been the same for all the animals. Those that yielded the higher profit were better fed than the others. The average feed cost for the milking period being $21.96 per head, while the feed received by the less profitable animals was valued at $32.63 per head. Calculating the cost of the milk the eight cows with the low yields made only 32 cents profit on a hundred pounds of milk while the higher yielding cows made 54 cents profit from an equal amount of milk.

This information and a great deal more of equal value is contained in the recently issued annual report of the dairy and cold storage commissioner of the department of agriculture at Ottawa. This report, in addition to the dairy and cold storage commissioner's report, contains twelve appendix which deal with the work of the assistant dairy commissioner, the extension of markets, dairy and cold storage divisions, etc. An appendix of unusual interest gives statistics of the export and import trade in dairy produce, which show that the exports of butter increased from 1,951,585 pounds in 1890 to 2,23,913 pounds in 1915, while during the same period the exports of cheese increased from 94,264,187 pounds to 137,601,651 pounds.

This report is available at the office of the publication branch, of the department of agriculture at Ottawa.

WILL THERE BE A NEW SOIAL ORDER

Will the war break way for a new social order?

That question is being asked, not alone by the social theorists at home, but also by the more observant among the war correspondents at the front, who say that a gradual transformation is taking place with the citizen soldiery. From other sources of equal authority the assurances come that the old middle walls between classes and creeds are gradually breaking down. The perspective of things is being adjusted in the white light of life's sterner realities. The signs are everywhere that after the war there will emerge a new society in which the Haves and Have-nots will associate as never in the past.

Advanced socialistic ideas have been "badly hit by the war." But the true social gospel with its supreme social motive, never before found such response in the hearts of men. At the battlefronts selfish individualism has given place to social co-operation. In the place of dog eat dog policy, now beginning to end, the war is one gigantic social effort in which each individual citizen at home feels the obligation to do his share in order that each individual soldier at the front can do his bit for the common good—the soldier of to-day.—Toronto Globe.

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 29.—No change had been made early today in estimates fixing at fifty the loss of life in the Otay Valley flood. When the lower dam of the Southern California Mountain Water Company broke last Thursday it released a flood of 11,000,000,000 gallons of water into the populous Valley, devastating an area fifteen miles long and two miles wide. The property damage, it is believed, will reach $1,000,000.

Red Deer, Jan. 29.—The fourth case of sedition to come up at this sitting of the Supreme court occupied the entire afternoon Friday. E. Schat a young farmer, American-born, of German descent, and a resident in the Evergreen district, west of the city, was found guilty by a jury after a short retirement, and sentenced by his lordship to pay a fine of $50, or serve three months in jail. The accused, who lives in a strong German settlement, had made statements to his neighbors, and the people living with him, of a most seditious nature re the sinking of the Lusitania, saying that the Germans did right in this, that the Royal North West Mounted Police were recruited from the scum of Great Britain, and that he would like to see Great Britain beaten, and she would be.

That the "back-to-the-land" movement is going on vigorously is evidenced by the returns from the Dominion Land Office for January, which announce that 139 applications for homesteads were filed at the Edmonton office during the month.

An attractive booklet giving information and particulars of the ninth annual Alberta Musical Festival, to be held in Lethbridge May 23, 24 and 25, has just been issued. This is the first time the competition has been held out of Edmonton. The competitions will be held on lines similar to those of other years.

A few days ago when the thermometer was 20 below zero, Elizabeth the 13 year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Falkener, while rounding up the cattle in their pasture, chased a coyote until he turned and showed fight. Jumping from the horse, she tackled the coyote and killed him with the butt end of her whip. Slinging her trophy across the horse's back, she rode home quite triumphant. Winnipeg, Jan. 29.—Sixty hours in a snow drift higher than the engine, with a bump in the rear from another train which telescoped the rear sleeper to a length of four seats was the experience of travellers who left Regina on the Canadian Northern Express on Tuesday, and who arrived in the city this morning. Among the passengers on the train were A. D. Milne, of the Exchange Hotel in this city, and Dr. Fenton, wife and three children, of Big River, Saskatchewan, who were en route to Ottawa. When the rear pullman was hit by an eastbound train the front of the engine came within four inches of Mrs. Dr. Fenton and her three children, who were occupying a seat.

We're much priturbed over the question which an eastern newspaper is propounding: "Should a minister be paid?" Personally we don't think so. A minister never has to spend any money and if he got paid he'd put it in the bank. And there are so many ministers that if they all put money in the bank, there'd be so much withdrawn from circulation that hard times would follow. But a minister doesn't need money anyhow. He gets a free manse, the neighbors always send in enough to eat; the coal man who belongs to the church charge nothing for coal. Besides, the minister doesn't smoke, doesn't drink, never goes to a show or any place else except to the annual conference, and then he is allotted on members of the congregation. A minister get paid? Should say not. What would he do with money? And then, it's dangerous to encourage extravagance, and some minister might want to buy a new suit.

Growth of Dairying — A Dairy Plant for Wetaskiwin

From Nothing to 2,500,000 lbs.

Dairying Permanent

Dairy Districts Most Prosperous

This is an Excellent Dairy Country

Wetaskiwin Milk and Cream to be Manufactured at Wetaskiwin

Permanent Assurance of Good Prices

Dairying is here to stay. The growth has been steady, yet rapid.

Ten years ago, for instance, we were starting business in a very small way. Our outfit was practically nil. Last year our output was 2,500,000 pounds of Creamery butter beside other dairy products. It was marketed not only in Alberta but also at the Pacific Coast and in the East.

We mention this example merely because it illustrates the growth of dairying in general and shows the broad demand for Alberta dairy products. No farmer need hesitate about going into the dairy business for fear it won't last. It is on a permanent basis and conditions are likely to improve steadily.

It is a well known fact that there is more prosperity to the square mile in such dairy districts as those of Ontario and Quebec or of Wisconsin and Illinois than in almost any other farming communities on the continent. True, dairying is exacting work. It requires skill and good management. But it is decidedly profitable.

The Wetaskiwin country is splendidly suited for dairying. The experience of scores and hundreds of dairy farmers in the district establishes this fact. Therefore we suggest that Wetaskiwin farmers go into dairying as actively as their available capital and available help will allow.

We propose to provide a first-class market for milk and cream and at the same time to operate a local industry by manufacturing both cheese and butter here. We trust that this move will benefit the Wetaskiwin district; that it will benefit the dairy industry in general.

The Edmonton City Dairy began business as a farmers' company. A large proportion of its Shareholders were, and are Patrons. A company of this nature is bound to pay as much for milk, cream etc. as it can possibly afford to. It has been and is our policy to pay the farmer the highest price consistent with the conditions of the trade so as to maintain our plants and obtain a reasonable return on the capital invested.

General News

Winnipeg has a snowfall this year of 58 inches, which is a record.

With the thermometer running to about fifty degrees below zero, the getting of news of any kind is a task these days almost beyond us. There is nothing doing in the way of news; everybody being too busy shovelling ing coal and trying to keep warm. We would like to see the fellow who will try and convince us that while it is cold in Alberta sometimes, you don't feel it.—Lacombe Globe.

Calgary, Jan. 27.—The grain traffic of western Canada is practically paralyzed. For two weeks now there has been practically no movement of wheat or oats from this province, notwithstanding that all the elevators are filled to overflowing, and there are thousands of bins owned by individual farmers in the small country towns loaded down with wheat and oats.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—The offer of a battalion by the western universities for overseas service has been accepted by the department of militia. The universities of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba will each raise a company. The presidents of the institutions were in conference with the minister this morning.

We understand that the impression prevails among some of our farmer friends that it is not necessary to advertise an estray animal in the local paper, provided it is advertised in the Alberta Gazette. This is an error, as the ordinance says very plainly that it shall be advertised in the local paper for at least three consecutive issues. The notice however, must be prepared by the brand reader, before the newspaper can accept it. Better not make any mistake about it.

The fire fiend has once more visited our town, with disastrous results At a few minutes to three o'clock yesterday afternoon, the clang of the fire bell startled citizens generally and there was a general rush for the Fire Hall. Clouds of heavy smoke were seen rising from the residence belonging to Mrs. J. Gamier, and occupied for some time by Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Dawson. It was at once apparent that it would be a practical impossibility to save the house or its contents, but by the rest of the chemical engine, the fire was prevented from spreading.—Daysland Press.

Edmonton, Jan. 28.—The Edmonton Journal today received a message from Ottawa to the effect that Lieut. Col. McKinery, of the 66th battalion had received authority to continue recruiting until he had raised a brigade. The message adds that the first new regiment will be the 194th Edmonton Highlanders, who will wear kilts and that the commanding officer and all other officers of the new battalion will be selected by Lt. Col. McKinery. Recruiting for the unit is to begin next week.

Experiments made with school gardens in the rural districts of Alberta have resulted very successfully and the statement is made by the department of education that greater attention will be paid to the encouragement of agriculture in this form. It has been found to be a very inexpensive and practical way of interesting children in the growth and care, not only of flowers, but of grain and vegetables, and a number of school districts last year had gardens which were the centres of interest among the agriculturists of the district.

The married soldiers in the 138th and 151st battalions are to be congratulated on the decision of the government to allow subsistence money in lieu of separation allowance to which their wives would be entitled if the men were in barracks. For some reason there has been no corresponding change such as would entitle their families to grants from the Patriotic Fund. However, as the pressure of public opinion secured the subsistence allowance for them, there is a possibility that it may also secure justice in the matter of allowance from the Patriotic Fund. The families of these men are clearly entitled to grants from that fund, and there is no apparent reason why they should be denied them.—Bulletin.

WILSON WARNS UNITED STATES WAR MAY COME

Cleveland, Jan. 30.—President Wilson, speaking, as he said, "solemnly" warned the nation last night that the time may come when he cannot keep the United States out of war and maintain its honor, as he declared the country must be prepared to defend itself and to prepare at once. "Let me tell you very solemnly that you cannot postpone this thing," he declared. For the first time during his tour the president spoke of the navy and of the coast defenses. The latter, he said were good in quality but not in quantity. The navy, he said, ranked not second, but fourth. New circumstances had arisen which made it absolutely necessary that this country should prepare for adequate national defense.

5,000 FACTS ABOUT CANADA

The public will welcome the new issue for 1916 of "5,000 Facts About Canada," the popular and valuable cyclopedia of Canadian dates, compiled by Frank Yeigh of Toronto, the well-known writer and lecturer on the Dominion. No up-to-date and intelligent Canadian can afford to be without this "handy annual" which is a revelation in concrete form of the wonderful growth of our country in a single year, despite war conditions; indeed, it circulates all over the world, and as such is a splendid advertisement. The chapter of War Facts is, by the way, both timely and illuminating. Fifty other chapters are devoted alphabetically to every phase of our national life from Agriculture to the Yukon, while several sketch maps are of high value. Copies may be had from newsdealers or by sending 25c to the Canadian Facts Pub. Co., 588 Huron street, Toronto.

GROSS CASUALTIES OF WAR

London, Jan. 25.—The gross casualties of the war to January 1, 1916, reached the enormous total of 14,960,000.

These figures have been computed from statements of the losses by Great Britain and her Allies, and are estimated in the case of the Teutonic allies.

The number of the killed is estimated at one in every five of the gross casualties, and prisoners at one in every seven.

Upon this basis it is found that the total killed number 2,990,000, the prisoners 2,140,000 and the wounded 9,880.

The estimate of the gross casualties suffered by each nation follows:

Russia	4,000,000
Germany	4,000,000
Austria Hungary	2,800,000
France	2,300,000
Great Britain	1,500,000
Italy	300,000
Belgium, Servia, Bulgaria and Turkey	1,000,000
Grand Total	14,900,000

In the Balkan war of 1912 and 1913 350,000 men were killed of the 1,250,000 engaged. In the Russo-Japanese conflict, 650,000 were killed of the 2,500,000 engaged. There are now at least 21,000,000 men under arms in the different theatres of the war.

Premier Sifton announced Monday evening that the provincial legislature would meet this year on Thursday, February 24th.

London, Jan. 28.—Single men of the ages from 27 to 30 years enroll ed under Lord Derby's enlistment scheme will be called out Feb. 3.

A country editor sarcastically remarks that he wants to buy a sack of flour, a pair of shoes and a straw hat, and he is ready to receive the lowest bids for the same. He hints that some of his town merchants treat him this way when they want $2.00 worth of printing done.—Chatham Word.

A report just issued by the forestry branch of the department of the interior shows that there is an area of 9,500 square miles of timber tributary to the district of Edmonton containing, according to government survey 3,727,000,000 feet of saw timber and over 10,000,000 cords of cord-wood. This must be interesting to people who think of Alberta as being entirely a prairie province.

Donnycastle Dale contributes the leading article to the February Red and Gun in Canada, writing with his usual skill on observations while he made of wild animals in British Columbia. "Roughing it de Luxe" by Judson Gaylord is an account of a visit to a Quebec club for millionaires as set down by one who was successful in invading the millionaire's stronghold. "Wilkin, the Hawk," A Tragedy of the Prairie," by Jas. S. Jones is the biography of of hawk whose characteristics are analogous to those of a human Wilhelm now much in the public eye. "The Home Trail" is the tale of a heart breaking trek to Oxford House and is related by R. J. Fraser. F. V. Williams contributes a story illustated by the cover design, "The Ranger's Friend". The regular departments are well maintained and the number is as a whole an attractive one particularly to sportsmen and lovers of out-of door life in its various phases.

AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION IN ALBERTA

The following paragraph from the pen of Dr. C. C. James, Dominion commissioner of agriculture, will be of interest to the people of Alberta: "Alberta.—This province has seven demonstration farms. It is proposed to carry on an Agricultural School at each of these farms. In 1912 arrangements were made to begin this work at three of the farms: Olds, Vermilion and Claresholm. This province erected the buildings, and the federal grant is used for salaries and maintenence. Each school has a separate staff, whose work is supplemented by some of the officers of the provincial department of agriculture. During the present year, the university at Edmonton has taken steps to organize a college of agriculture under Dean Howes. The agricultural schools will carry the students through first and second years course and the college of agriculture will complete their course with three more years' work. The department of education is about to begin the teaching of agriculture in the public schools, and has just issued a text book to be used in this instruction.

In agricultural schools, Alberta is the pioneer, and the great success achieved through their work will no doubt stimulate other provinces. New Brunswick has followed her example and now has two fine buildings, where short courses have already been held. These, it is hoped, will soon be providing more extended courses. The question at once arises: why have other provinces not established agricultural schools similar to those of Alberta? This applies particularly to Ontario, where her agricultural college is being taxed to its limit. If the people of Ontario were aware of the great benefits resulting from such schools as those of Alberta, there would be a public demand that would soon result in the establishing of two at least, one in Eastern Ontario and one in Western Ontario. If the importance of such training were fully appreciated, we should see in the next ten years an agricultural school in every county of Ontario. This school would replace from six to ten of the little one-room schools now scattered broadcast over the country."

$40,000 IN FINES RESULT OF LICENSE DETECTIVES WORK

A statement of convictions for infractions of the Alberta liquor license ordinance during 1915 has been prepared by Chief License Inspector F. G. Forster of the liquor license branch of the attorney general's department. The returns show that the small detective force employed by the branch has been very energetic during the year.

In all 826 cases were prosecuted and 751 convictions secured. There were 622 cases for infractions of the liquor license ordinance, and 571 convictions. There were also 41 convictions for infractions of the pool room ordinance; 18 convictions in prostitution cases 12 convictions for selling opium, 4 convictions for gambling; 7 convictions for procuring, and also convictions for theft, running lotteries, assault, impersonating an officer, etc.

The punishments meted out in connection with these convictions included fines aggregating over $40,000; jail terms aggregating 290 months and 10 days, also 12 cases in which suspended sentences were given.

This statement constitutes the largest year's work which has ever been handled by the department. Compared with 1914, there has been an increase of 37 convictions, $6,000 in fines and 213 months in prison terms. Chief License Inspector Forster says that the statement should be satisfactory to those who have been advocating in the past more drastic punishments in cases arising out of offences against the liquor laws of Alberta. In claiming the above results practicly every complaint coming to the department has been investigated, id while evidence was procurable, a prosecution followed.

WAR IS ONLY BEGINNING FOR THE ALLIES, SAYS DAVID LLOYD GEORGE

London, Jan. 28.—"I think that for us the war is only beginning," said David Lloyd George, minister of munitions, in an interview today with the London correspondent of the Milan Secolo, "but I am absolutely confident of victory because, although we have all made mistakes in the past, England and her allies are now taking counsel together and will be stronger because they are united. By next spring we shall have for the first time more munitions than the enemy, and our superiority in men is unquestioned. Besides this Germany's financial position is growing worse daily."

The minister of munitions admitted that the entente allies were caught unprepared, and had to organize armies. England, he said, had to create an army. Asked if he thought that the war would end in a deadlock, the minister said that such a thing must not be thought of for a moment.

"It may take a long time," he said, "but we must crack the nut before we get at the kernel. Wearing down the other side by attrition is too long and would not be a smashing, pulverizing victory. Pressure is becoming greater. The frontiers are being spread temporally but are becoming weaker in a military sense and the process of strangulation will squeeze them more and more."

1,000,000 TONS OF COAL MINED IN EDMONTON DISTRICT 1915

The returns for 1915 of the output of coal for the province of Alberta have not been all received, but the provincial department of mines estimates from the figures received to date that the amount for the year was approximately between 3,250,000 and 3,500,000 tons. About one million tons of this coal came from the mines of the Edmonton district.

The coal production for 1913 was about 4,000,000 tons and in 1914 a little over that. The reason for the slight decrease in 1915 is that large numbers of the miners have enlisted and there has not been the overproduction added as in other years. The deposits are as rich as ever and according to statisticians, almost inexhaustible, amounting, it is said, to over three trillion tons, so that there is little fear of the people of this generation experiencing a shortage of this commodity.

TWENTY THOUSAND MORE CANADIANS TO GO IN NEXT MONTH

Ottawa, Jan. 29.—General Sir Sam Hughes announced tonight that the war office had asked that 20,000 more Canadian troops be sent to England and this number will go forward in the next month, or as soon as transports can be secured. The battalion will be chosen, as far as possible, in the order of their efficiency. The offer of this number was made some months ago and is now only accepted because the war office could not make provision for housing additional troops at that time. Arrangements are now underway to establish 20,000 additional Canadians in camps there.

A citizen gazing solemnly at his ash pile one morning remarked, "All is not coal that clinkers." But some of the coal dealers will sanctingly tell you that the better the coal the more it clinkers.—Representative.

According to the Calgary Herald, the Calgary vag record is held by William Hamilton. He was arrested eight times in 1913, three times in February, 1914, one in 1915, was up Saturday morning and given 30 days' hard. William, who has been existing on an industry of begging old clothes and selling them to second hand dealers, was arrested while dancing a fancy step. William had been without food for two days, and had just begged a successful meal.

Hotel thieves made a fine clean up in Calgary last week. The guests of the Alexandra and Grunwald hotels were depried of over $600 in a few hours. The police have been working on the case, but have failed to get results.

THE SOLDIER OF TODAY

The individual soldier of today, no matter how friendless, is made to feel himself a comrade in a new society. He goes to war not as a stray individual, but as an equipped and well constituted member of a living society. Rain or shine, sick or well, he is paid a living wage, the implements of his service are provided; his needful food and clothing are provided as never before; out of the nation's common purse his wants are ministered to, and those dependent upon him are cared for during his absence; for in not a few instances with a more liberal provision than his presence had ever made. The citizen-soldier, because of his sterling manhood and unfaltering loyalty, commands the respect of all.

EATIN' TOO MUCH

I eat too much, the doctor tells me; with arguments like this he quells me, when I inform him that his potions of which I've swallowed endless oceans, don't cure my shingles, mumps or fetter, or make me feel the least it better. "There'd be less sickness grief and wailing, there'd be less suffering and ailing" the doc says, musing in his carving "If men would leave the table starving. Oh, let your meals be slim and meager; quit eating while you still are eager for your roast beef spuds and gravy and beans—the kidney kind and navy. Oh, leave the table while you're hollow, and while you still desire to swallow the bill of fare from A to Izzard, from soup right down to chicken gizzard. Then you'll be cured if your diseases aint laundered dog eared of fleas is." Thus do the wise and learned physicians attack the modern day conditions. We cut ourselves by means distressing, and by the doctor for his guessing.—Wm. Mason.

CAMROSE

(From The Canadian)

Rudolph Link and sons met with a severe accident on Tuesday morning at their farm a few miles from town when they were overcome with the fumes from a gasoline engine which they were operating at the time. The discovery was made by a neighbor who called at the place, and going to the pump house where the parties had been working found them unconscious upon the floor. Both father and sons are now on the road to recovery.

Three Camrose boys will leave shortly for Revelstoke, B.C., where they are to compete with the best ski jumpers of the North American continent for the championship of the world which will be held in that city in the near future. This has always proved a contest of the utmost endurance, as it attracts from all over take part. The boys who intend leaving Camrose for the event are: Ole Svenson and the Malund brothers.

The Camrose Canal Creamery, which has been under construction for some time will finally open its doors to the public bring the first part of February. When opened this creamery willbe one of the finest in the entire prairie provces. Every known commodity manufactured from milkand cream will bmade in Camrose and service willbe the keynote of their efficiency. It will be possible, when running at capacity, to manufacture one thousand pounds of butter everyhour in the day, besides turning out large quantities of ice cream andcheese.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents in Duhamel Wednesday, January 19, when Bessie daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Lobb was united in the bonds of holy matmony to W. S. Rutherford of Killaby, the Rev. D. C. Ramsay of Camrose officiating. The young couple are well and favably known in their respective distrs and it is the sincere wish of their many friends that pence, joy plenty and prosperity be theirs on the sea of matrimony.

The home of Mr. andrs. James B. Gordon was the scene of a wedding party on Thursday January 20 when their daughter Gertrude Winnifred was united in marriage, Mr. Geo. Ulyett of Donalda, by the Rev. D. C. Ramsay. Mr. and Mrs. Ulyett are well known in Camrose where they have a host of friends. The young couple will make their future home in Donalda.

THE LAST CALL

Recruiting is going much more briskly of late in England and also in this country, and it is well that it should be so. From now on greater impetus may be expected to the efforts being made to get all the men wanted, for when the question is squarely and personally placed before a lot of men they will be found responsive and in this respect the splendid poem composed by Harold Begbie and published in the London Chronicle ought to be considered by every man of military age:

Fight it out in your heart, my lad,
Its time for the final wrench;
Home has its arms around your neck
But Conscience points to the trench
Your brothers fought through that self-same fight,
Are they rallied to face the Hun;
And where would your home be now, my lad,
If Conscience had not won?

It isn't an easy choice to make,
But it can be made, and must;
Shirk, and you bring the basest thing
In your soul, and oors, to the dust
Your brothers wrestled with God, and cried,
That God should leave them alone,
And where would your soul seek haven today,
Had God been overthrown?

The eyes of our women search your face,
Our children look as you pass;
How does it feel to meet those eyes
And your own eyes, in the glass?
Hard, hard, for you now to meet the eyes
With their challenge How can you wait?
But where will you hide from your brother's eyes?
If you should come too late.

This is the last, the last free call
To go as your brothers went;
To go as heroic Britons should—
Not wait till they're fetched and sent.
Win your first fight, the fight with self,
Be swift with that gallant blow,
Then on to your second fight good lad,
And crush God's other foe.

His Face Was Covered With Pimples.

Pimples are not a serious trouble, but they are very unsightly.

Pimples are caused wholly by bad blood, and to get rid of them it is necessary to purify the blood of all its impurities.

Burdock Blood Bitters has made many remarkable cures; the pimples have all disappeared, and a bright, clean, complexion left behind.

Mr. Lennox D. Cooke, Indian Path, N.S., writes: "I am writing you a few lines to tell you what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. Last winter my face was covered with pimples. I tried different kinds of medicine, and all seemed to fail. I was one day to a friend's house, and there they advised me to use B.B.B., so I purchased two bottles, and before I had them taken I found I was getting better. I got two more, and when they were finished I was completely cured. I find it is a great blood purifier, and I recommend it to all." Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for the past forty years, and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Country Roads

(By W. Muir Edwards, Professor of Civil and Municipal Engineering)

In the first article of this series the general principles governing the economics of roadway construction and maintenance were dealt with and a classification based on the nature of the traffic was made of Main Highways, Branch Highways and Country Roads. It is with the latter that it is proposed to deal in the present article.

In dealing with country roads as classified above it might be well to first point out that the use of material other than that found in the neighborhood is financially out of the question. Whether it be loam, sand or clay, the local conditions must be dealt with and the road constructed of materials at hand. In the second place we should emphasize the fact that, although there are locations in which physical difficulties may be met that are hard to overcome, most of the country roads of the province could be made quite satisfactory by a moderate expenditure and oversight. Drainage, proper initial construction and continuous upkeep are the essential features.

In discussing road construction too much importance cannot be attached to proper drainage. As we travel the country roads possibly no feature is so noticeable as the almost uniform practice of repeatedly filling in bad spots which could be permanently cured by much less labor devoted to proper drainage. In road construction we deal with surface, side and subsoil drainage.

Surface drainage of the roadway is very important. The most destructive agent with which the road has to contend with is water is allowed to remain any length of time in its neighborhood. If pooled on the road the top surface is softened and under the action of traffic the road is rutted. These ruts hold more water and if conditions are not speedily remedied the roadway goes from bad to worse until it is almost impassable. Just here attention may be called to the fact that the criterion of a good road is not the possibility of finally passing over it with a load, but rather that such a surface is maintained that the motive power, be it oxen, horses or motors shall give a reasonable return on the capital it represents.

Surface drainage is accomplished by crowning the road. The slope from the centre to the sides should be varied to suit the material used. From ½ to 1 inch of fall per foot of road width measured from the centre will give satisfactory results. Too flat a crown tends to poor drainage whilst too steep a side slope may rut the roadway and will also cause undue traffic on the centre portion. This "tracking" of vehicles means increased wear at one spot and is a frequent source of destruction to the roadbed.

Having shed the water to the side of the roadway, it is equally important that arrangements be made for the satisfactory progress of this water in the roadside ditches. Although the slope of these ditches may be fairly flat the water should flow to a definite outfall and so be carried away from the neighborhood of the roadway. It might seem unnecessary to emphasize such an obvious matter as an outlet for the side ditches but strange to say this feature is totally neglected in many pieces of roadwork. Due to the soaking of water from these blind ditches into the body of the roadbed bad spots are developed which last long into dry periods.

Subsoil drainage is often necessary where the road runs across low wet ground. If the surface of the subsoil water can be lowered a firm foundation for the roadbed may be obtained. Drainage of this type is usually quite expensive and in many cases may be classed with bridges and other permanent provincial undertakings. Another type of subsoil drainage is that of the roadbed itself. Tile drains are placed on one or both sides of the roadbed at a depth of 2½ to 3 feet below the surface. The moisture in itself is drawn off, thus increasing its bearing power and lessening the action of frost. In the clay soils so prevalent in the province this type of work is of questionable utility. In sand roads it would be distinctly harmful since a sand road is the one exception to the general rule regarding drainage. The retention of the moisture is the feature to be aimed at in the operation of such a road.

Initial construction and drainage are so closely connected that a discussion of one must include the other. Without therefore devoting any further space to the first two essentials in road building we might consider the third, which applies more particularly to road operation. Upkeep should be given equal consideration with drainage in any roadway discussion. The filling in rather than the drainage of bad spots has already been commented upon as the most noticeable feature of poor roadwork. This should be really be qualified and possibly the premier place given to the practice of industriously grading a roadbed and then cheerily leaving it to look after itself. Earth roads especially need care if they are to remain in a satisfactory condition. This care may be of the simplest kind consisting of the cleaning of the roadside ditches and the dragging of the roadway. This latter operation consists of pulling over the road a drag which fills in the ruts, smooths out the ridges and re-crowns the road by moving material from the side to the centre. The drag itself is extremely simple to construct. Blacksmith shop or well equipped farmer's workshop could turn one out for not more than $15.00. The cost of operation is also by no means excessive. Owing to the character of the spring and fall seasons in the province and since no work is required during the winter an average of, $10.00 per mile per year should cover all that is necessary in dragging operations. This is equivalent to a charge of $3.75 per quarter-section for this part of road maintenance. Considering the saving to the farmers in actual cost and the convenience and comfort to be derived from good road connections with the nearest town and with the neighborhood generally it might well be considered that it is inertia and lack of knowledge rather than the expense involved which prevents the practice. In dragging lies the secret of the proper maintenance of serviceable country roads.

The necessity for the proper placing and proportioning of culverts might very well be dealt with but space permits only a reference to the matter.

Grading an earth road can be done for less than $150.00 per mile, maintenance might be placed at $15.00 per mile per year. It is quite possible that additional expenses may be found to be justified in surfacing country roads with a judicious mixture of sand and clay. The discussion of this might be left to be considered in dealing with more expensive types of roadwork justified in highway construction and will be dealt with in the third article of the series.

Referring to the classification of roads made in the first article, it might be pointed out in conclusion that in most sections of the province it is possible to obtain a country road of the third, and possibly of the second class with a moderate initial and maintenance charge. Considering the many months of fine weather with which we are blessed in Alberta a road of this class, passable at all times for slow and for the greater portion of the time for all types of traffic, is, in most cases all that is required. Having been successful in obtaining these we might then consider the necessity of and if advisable, undertake a more expensive type of construction for the main lines of communication.

CHAMOIS-GASOLINE EXPLOSION

Whenever you filter gasoline through chamois you are playing hide and seek with one of the deadliest combinations known to man—electricity and gasoline.

Never strain gasoline through a chamois. Gasoline and chamois do not get along.

Let us assume that you are about to fill your tank. The funnel is in the nozzle. The chamois strainer is in the funnel. The gasoline is turned on and as it pours through the chamois it generates static electricity. Statical electricity may be defined as electricity that is at rest. It is an agent neither of construction or destruction, so long as nothing is done to unleash it. Unleash it knowingly or unknowingly, and you have to deal with the most diabolical force known, a force that destroys with the quickness of lightning.

So long as the funnel fits securely into the mouth of the tank, thus creating a "ground" you are safe.

Now for the sake of excitement, let us assume that you did not allow the funnel to rest inside the nozzle of your tank, so that the gasoline seeped through the chamois skin. Either yourself or someone else held the funnel in mid-air, or it rested free of the side of the tank. No ground was formed.

We have said that gasoline, a volatile substance, passing through a chamois forms statical electricity, which charges the funnel. When the amount of electricity is sufficient to produce a jump spark, that spark followed the inevitable law of electricity attraction, jumps to the nearest ground, which is your tank. In doing so it must pass across the opening between the end of the funnel and the edge of the tank through which the gasoline vapor is rising. Suddenly there is a violent discharge.

Many have been burned and scarred for life through the ignorance of this fiend of electricity. Many more it is sad to relate, have been measured out on the last cool bed. No one was able to tell just how they died.

The moral to be derived from this article is: Do not put gasoline through a chamois skin. But if you will insist on taking chances, be sure that you have a "ground" on it, by touching the funnel to the opening of the tank. Be double sure that you take this precaution.—American Chauffeur.

LOVE Rules The World

MORE powerful than all the laws ever made, love levels all obstacles and even the peasant girl may find herself suddenly raised to the highest of earthly positions.

Swift as light, powerful as fate, thrilling with emotion and brimful of exciting incidents, THE BROKEN COIN fairly carries the spectators right off their feet into the realms of breathless romance.

Peerless Kitty Gray, the brave and beautiful heroine, becomes a universal favorite from the first moment she appears on the screen.

Free from improbable, bloody, silly situations or slapstick horseplay, void of mere claptrap sensationalism, it is yet full of real red-blood life and realness.

Crammed with exciting episodes, full of power, animation and strong convincing action, coupled with a real heart-throbbing story by Emerson Hough, past master of soul-stirring fiction, THE BROKEN COIN is all of these.

Alberta Telephone System

The general telephone system in the province of Alberta is owned and operated by the Provincial government. According to the last annual report the government now owns and operates 155 telephone exchanges with 27,514 subscribers' stations, there being 18,192 exchange and 9,222 rural telephones. During the last yearly period there was an increase of 1,565 rural subscribers.

Aside from the government system there is a municipal system operated by the City of Edmonton and a private exchange at Red Deer with over 500 subscribers, so that over 36,000 homes and business places in Alberta are enjoying telephone service.

The government long distance lines comprise 16,112 miles of wire or 3,845 miles of poles. Five hundred and fifty cities, towns, villages and communities in the province are now served by the government system, which also connects with the Saskatchewan government system in the adjoining province of Saskatchewan, and with 35 points in the other neighboring province of British Columbia. The rural lines system comprises 27,732 miles of wire or 8,745 miles of poles.

As the system is owned and operated by the people themselves, there is no desire to make big profits, but rather to give good service and to extend the convenience of telephone connection as rapidly as possible in the rural districts. Rural subscribers who are connected with an exchange where day service only is given, are charged a rate of $15 a year; where continuous service is given, the rate is $18 a year, and where the connection is with large centres, such as Calgary, Edmonton Lethbridge and Medicine Hat, the rate is $20 per year.

The government builds rural telephone lines where an average of one subscriber per mile of line can be secured, and the territory is limited to 15 miles from the exchange through which the service is given. Government lines are built on the road allowance, the farmer being required to pay for the necessary spur line from his house to the nearest connection on the road allowance.

Numerous stories of how the Germans bayonet Canadians as they lie wounded on the battle-field have been told since the men from the Dominion took the field, but that the German Red Cross attendants treat the wounded, the men whom they are supposed to succor, in the same barbarous and brutal manner, is the story told by Pte. G. W. Hincks of the 13th Canadian Royal Highlanders, in a letter to his father, Mr. Robert Hincks, a well-known Calgarian. Young Hincks, sat in the saddle of his gun pumping death into the Germans until they swept over him, leaving him for dead on the ground. He lay on the disputed ground between the British and German trenches for three days without food or drink, was then captured by the Germans, and after several months' incarceration, sent back to England, as he was then considered as no further use as a fighting man. Pte. Hincks tells how, at the end of the three days, a German Red Cross attendant came up to him, asked him where he was wounded, and then, on being shown the young Highlander's ankle, which had been pierced by a bullet, immediately drew his side-arm and thrust the bayonet into the injured leg.—News-Telegram.

Those people who are talking about the present cold weather being a record appear to be somewhat tangled up. Was it not only seven years ago that the freeze-up came the first week in October and lasted until the middle of April. During that winter the mercury (official records) was down as low as 55 or more below zero and for several weeks at a stretch ranged from 35 to 45 below zero?—Innisfail Province.

BIG RUSH TO CANADA AFTER THE WAR

London, Jan. 29.—"There will be a large rush of young men who are now soldiers to Canada. Men will never get these former clerks and other men of the middle class to remain in Britain when peace arrives." These were the words of Lord Derby. He is watching the development of the recruits which he so successfully organized and studies not only their present position but their future. There are some thinkers in England who believe Britain should not lose these men, but Lord Derby is not among the number.

"It had been the idea of many before the war," continued Lord Derby "that settlers going to Canada or Australia would never return to the Motherland when she needed them for the tremendous conflict which was always menacing. Germany, Austria and every continental countries discouraged and even forbade their young men going overseas. They were saving their men power for the world war. People in Britain were anxious too. But from every corner of the Empire men have rallied to the Motherland's help. Whether British or generation old colonists they have come back and they are the best fighters we have. Look what Canada did at Ypres and the Australians at Gallipoli. Look at the hundreds of thousands who are voluntarily coming every month They are a living answer to those who feared the man drain which the Dominions are making. It is a splendid thing for them and for the Empire. There should be no disposition to discourage immigration after the war ends.

MEN IN TRAINING MAY TAKE PART IN SPRING SEEDING

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—Men training for overseas service will be allowed to take part in the spring seeding with in the Dominion. A short time ago E. N. Lewis, M.P., called the attention of the minister of militia to the fact that it would be desirable for Canada to plant as large an acreage as possible this year, that a great crop might be grown and garnered for the benefit of Canada, or Britain, and of the allies. Gen. Hughes, is therefore, issuing orders through the divisional commanders that men in units throughout the country may obtain leave of absence from their military duties in the spring for a sufficient length of time to enable them to plant the seed for the crops in every province in Canada. In doing this, General Hughes is following the precedent set last autumn when the soldiers were allowed to help in the harvest.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear Father, Daniel McRae, Coronation, Alberta, who departed this life on February 9, 1915.

He is gone, our father's left us,
And our hearts with grief are sore,
But he is not gone for ever,
He's not lost, but gone before.

The year has sadly flown—
To us its still a dream,
God called him, 'twas his will,
But in our hearts he liveth still.

A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled,
God in His wisdom has realized,
The boon His love had given.

The home is sad without him,
And how desolate each heart,
Oh, could we hear his voice again
What joy would it impart.

We miss him, oh, we miss him,
Which ever way we go,
The stroke of death that snatched him hence,
Has filled our hearts with woe.

When God's voice did call him,
And his spirit sped above,
He went not to a land of strangers,
But unto the God we love

Yet we miss him, oh, we miss him,
And our hearts with sorrow sigh,
We no more shall see our loved one
As the weary years go by.

But the time is swiftly passing,
Soon we too shall leave earth's shore,
Then once more, we'll see our darling
He's not lost, but gone before.

Softly at night the stars are peeping
Upon a low and silent grave,
Where thou sleepest dearest father,
One we loved, but could not save.
—The Family.

The country doctor in Scotland one day met a Highlander who said he was a staunch teetotaller, and resolved to put him to the test. Passing an inn, he asked him in, and ordered two glasses of whiskey. After they had drunk these and two or three more at the doctor's expense, his friend began to get a wee bit "glib o' the gab." The doctor then feeling he had him, asked: "How does this square with your teetotal pretensions?" Weel, quoth John, with a quiet smile, "though I'm a staunch teetotaller, I'd be a fule to refuse whit the doctor ordes."

Twenty-four persons were killed and 27 injured when a Zeppelin dropped some three and a half tons of explosives on the city of Paris.

Blanche, the 7 year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Dennis, had both hands severely frozen while on her way from school last Friday evening It was at first thought that she would lose all her fingers, but hopes are now entertained for their ultimate recovery. The little sufferer is now resting easier.—Stroma Despatch.

Seager Wheeler, the man who grows the world beating wheat, tells his farmer friends that the secret of his success is summed up in the words "seed selection and crop improvement." It will be noticed that there is no mention here of profits. Wheeler works for the love of producing the goods of quality; the profit then comes as a welcome incidental. How many farmers work their farms that way?—Calgary Herald.

In 1915, taxes amounting to $19,972.15 were paid on wild land in Leduc and Wetaskiwin districts combined.
